

"It has been my great pleasure to work with Rockhopper Studios on two significant occasions.

As Head of the MK Rock School, part of the Milton Keynes Music Service, I recently arranged and ran a 3 day workshop for 60 young musicians between 10 and 18 years of age.

The Rockhopper mobile studio was brought along for an afternoon where they recorded no less than 10 of the bands that the workshop had produced. These young musicians were introduced to studio recording for the first time.

This was a fantastic opportunity for the students who not only experienced a pro studio but also went away with a fine recording of one off their songs.

Both Steve and Davids approach to the students was just right and the students were inspired and enthralled.

The second occasion was in my other guise as 'A' level Music Technology teacher at Stantonbury Campus. I organised and presented an 'all day' seminar for sixth form music tech students from 7 Milton Keynes schools.

The morning was spent recording the instrument and vocal parts for a song and the afternoon mixing those parts to produce a finished product.

Steve and David brought the Rockhopper to Stantonbury Campus as part of the afternoon 'mixing' workshop. They demonstrated mixing the song to some 70 students which once again proved an inspiring and enlightening experience.

The Rockhopper team provide a high quality professional service and, whilst they are running a business, are motivated by a genuine passion for the creative process and for making that process accessible to all.

I have been delighted with their contribution to both School and Rock School events and, as a result, have already planned future collaborations."

Andy Glass
Head of Milton Keynes Music Service